

Australia: the test-bed for tyranny

Introduction

It is the opinion of many geo-political commentators that Australia is a test-bed for the global rollout of a new totalitarian governance of society, especially western society. It is not the only testing ground, New Zealand and Canada are the others. What happens in these places, no matter how draconian and incredible, soon after occurs in Britain.

For example today as I write an NHS whistleblower, whose credentials have been tested and evaluated by the staff at the Telegraph, has explained that there is already in place preparation to vaccinate kids down to the age of 12, with staff allocations and deadlines. This was formerly denied by the government, while at the same time instructing the NHS to plan for it with an action date of the beginning of September. It provides for these 12-year old kids to get vaccinated without their parent's consent. This was already tested in Australia (I will give details later) to worldwide scorn. [Update: two days later the health minister announced this policy pending JCVI authority. Update 2: the JCVI opposed it but the health minister continued to seek justification for the programme.]

The reason that this is shocking (and against the Nuremberg Code) is that such children cannot possibly give informed consent. In fact, no one can because the true risks and data are not explained to anyone.

It is thus helpful to itemise some of the shocking details of what has been going on in Australia, which even mainstream commentators (such as Tucker Carlson) are saying has become a police state. Some have even stated (James Delingpole) that the Taliban regime is less authoritarian since it is not enforcing the vaccine programme.

Now it is important to understand that Australia is sub-divided into states and territories under a federal government. There are differences of governance amongst these states with some being better than others. It seems that Victoria, New South Wales and Queensland are the worst while Western Australia is faring slightly better. Thus some of the items I will list may not apply in all the states.

It is also true to say that many people in Australia are not aware of the full nature of government restrictions. Those rural-dwellers that watch mainstream media propaganda, such as Channel 7, and do not check alternative sources, have little idea of the take-over of the country by power-mad, Socialist imbeciles.

Despite this, hundreds of thousands of people are now demonstrating in multiple, recurrent marches in places like Melbourne and Sydney. The reaction of the draconian government has been ruthless, with massive (I would say illegal) police brutality against peaceful protestors with families. The arrest of George Floyd sparked a worldwide political movement; yet the actions of the Australian police have been committing equally, or even worse, sins on a regular basis. I will explain more later.

I will give sources and references as I deem appropriate. I do not want this comment paper to be filled with unnecessary footnotes, so not every statement will be sourced. In any case, videos that I have seen with my own eyes (such as filmed events during marches) get deleted from social media pretty quickly. Referencing these would be pointless.

Background

Prime Minister

- Scott Morrison. Centred in Canberra.

Current State Premiers

- Daniel Andrews, Victoria, (Socialist).
- Anastacia Palaszczuk, Queensland, (Socialist).
- Gladys Berejiklian, New South Wales, (Liberal; equates to centre-right).
- Mark McGowan, Western Australia, (Socialist).
- Steven Marshall, South Australia, (Liberal).
- Peter Gutwein, Tasmania, (Liberal).

Chief ministers of the Territories

- Andrew Barr, Australian Capital Territory, (Socialist).
- Michael Gunner, Northern Territory, (Socialist).

Population

- 25.8 million.
- In comparison, the population of London is 9.4 million.

Covid

- The number of Covid deaths is 984. [Comparison with UK: 131,680 deaths.]
- Less than five deaths a day.
- Number of cases is 44,920. [Comparison with UK: 6,524,581.]
- By 27 August 33% of the national population was vaccinated.
- New South Wales, which has very severe Covid restrictions, has had only 27 deaths.
- Melbourne has had six lockdowns. Currently, people cannot leave the house except for essential exercise, shopping (for some cases) or essential workers.

Out of control policing

The Australian police are completely out of control. Almost daily, videos are uploaded showing police brutality that is comparable to 1930s Nazi Germany. No one is safe from these thugs, not the young, the old, the disabled or women; let alone men.

There have been so many instances of police brutality uploaded on social media that I cannot possibly recount them all. A few include:

- In a peaceful demonstration protesting restrictions in Melbourne, comprising all ages, all walks of life and multiple races, heavily armoured police ran horses into the crowds. They fired rubber bullets against unarmed peaceful citizens including old women. They sprayed pepper spray indiscriminately, including right into the eyes of a ten-year old boy who was left screaming with his concerned parents unsure what to do (they had no water). This latter act would have been enough to spark a rebellion in former times. The people were walking away from the police when they fired.

- They burst into a family home early in the morning to arrest a pregnant woman in her pyjamas in front of her screaming children for the crime of posting an advert on Facebook for a demonstration (which is a legal right).
- A teenage girl was brutally attacked by several police officers and thrown to the ground and sat on by one of them and arrested for the ‘crime’ of not wearing a mask. She was exempt by the way.
- Another teenage girl had pepper spray sprayed into her face while being arrested for not wearing a mask. One of the police officers was also not wearing a mask.
- Police arrested a sick middle-aged man for not wearing a facemask (he was exempt with a breathing problem) and one officer strangled the man with a chokehold. The man’s face went blue, and despite the protestations of his wife, he collapsed unconscious to the floor.
- Avi Yemeni is facing a two-week court trial costing $186,000 for repeated arrests and detention for simply reporting facts on the street as a bona-fide journalist because the government does not like Rebel News for telling the truth.
- On a demonstration the police pushed a 70-year old lady to the ground and while she was immobilised on the ground they repeatedly pepper sprayed her.
- An elderly woman on a march was brutalised by police so badly that she broke her hip.
- Peaceful protestors have been severely wounded by rubber bullets fired into their faces.
- Military lines of police officers, in full armour, have been patrolling the streets and parks to seek out folk without a mask. Two men saw them coming and ran into a garage to buy facemasks, put them on and walked out. 50 (yes 50) police officers brutally arrested them.
- There are multiple videos of police officers talking to someone, such as without a mask or having a protest banner, but then the police suddenly turn on the victim, throw them to the ground and brutally arrest them – with no provocation at all. This is happening to women as well as men; in one case multiple police arrested a peaceful woman with her infant child, who was terrified and screaming.

Military

Australia brought in the army to help police Covid restrictions in August. 300 troops were sent to Sydney, chiefly to monitor quarantine patients (that’s people that travelled or tested positive, but not necessarily sick with anything). Further troops were sent to other places.

Police dissatisfaction

The police are now showing signs of reaction to what they know are illegal and oppressive measures that they are demanded to undertake.

Some officers have disclosed that they feel ashamed to be part of an organisation that is supposed to uphold the rule of law and stop bullying and discrimination, yet is actively promoting these. One officer said, ‘The directions we are ordered to comply with are highly politicised and often lack scientific foundation’.

Police mask mandate

The Western Australia Police Commissioner, Chris Dawson, issued an edict on 9 August that any officer who has not had the Covid vaccination is required to wear a mask while working. This publicly identifies any officer’s medical situation. This policy is discriminatory and thus illegal. It also victimises people that have a medical reason¹ to not be vaccinated or are rationally concerned about the risks.

Extreme totalitarianism

Random Gestapo checks

Police officers, sometimes accompanied by the military, have been coming into people’s homes and taking them away as they conduct random ‘welfare checks’. Many have been informed on by neighbours, which the government is encouraging. The people are being taken to hotels but some to an existing vax internment camp.

Innocent people committing no crime have had their SmartPhone taken from them and searched for incriminating content.

Mandatory vaccinations

It has been reported on social media, with videos, that the police are rounding up people walking in parks and demanding their vaccination status. If they are unvaccinated, they are immediately subjected to a mental health examination on the spot by a psychologist present. The psychologist then sections the person, giving the state power over them. They are then held down and immediately vaccinated by a nurse also present in the team.

If this seems incredible, consider that this course of action was taken against Dr Sam White in Britain. The medical council applied sanctions to him on the basis that he is mentally unsound because he has questioned the vaccine rollout. [He was subsequently exonerated.]

¹ There are many: people with allergies, people with autoimmune diseases, people with suppressed immune systems etc.

The NSW state government has ordered that all teachers must be vaccinated by 8 November. If they refuse, they will be sacked. This policy is illegal and discriminatory on medical grounds. This will affect 10% (10,000) of teachers.

Internment camps

The government has built internment camps for 'mandatory quarantine facilities'. Officials have said that getting vaccinated is the 'golden ticket' to get out. The first phase is set to open in early 2022, so the draconian measures are not going to end anytime soon. Two have been built so far able to hold about 3,000 people each. One situated outside Melbourne is called 'The Centre for National Resilience' (straight out of Orwell's 1984).

A video emerged of one internee filming the sounds of another down the hall (apparently in an existing guarded internment facility). This was someone in enforced quarantine as a prisoner who had already spent 14 days in solitary confinement seeking release. The camp police threaten to gas him instead. The occupant in the video explains that you cannot get air in the sealed rooms and wasn't even allowed a crossword puzzle to pass the time. The internee screams 'take me somewhere where the walls aren't caving in' revealing signs of mental breakdown. All this for a positive PCR test which is meaningless.

Three years duration or more

Letters sent to citizens detailed the government's plans for restrictions. It details expectations for restrictions to continue for up to three years and that mandatory facilities would improve compliance and change attitudes. It says,

With Covid-19 quarantine requirements expected to continue in some form at least over the next two to three years, the Victorian government has further committed to investigating alternative models of mandatory quarantine including purpose-built Alternative Quarantine Accommodation outside of Melbourne's Central Business District. ...to ... help improve compliance.

Dr Kerry Chant (NSW chief health officer) stated that society was never going back to normal, even if everyone was fully vaccinated.

Controlling social media

The government recently passed a law² within 24-hours giving the police complete control of personal social media.

Under this law the Australian Federal Police (AFP) and the Australian Criminal Intelligence Commission (ACIC) can hack your device, collect or delete data, take over your social media accounts – and all without a judge’s warrant.

The three new powers are:

- Data disruption: the power to disrupt data by modifying, copying, adding, or deleting it.
- Network activity: power to collect intelligence from devices or networks used by the subject.
- Account take-over: allows control of an online account for the purposes of gathering information for investigation.

All of this is on mere suspicion of a crime; plus there is no judicial oversight. The warrant for this comes from the Administrative Appeals Tribunal. Online companies that do not comply can receive a ten-year prison sentence. The claimed reasons for this draconian legislation are: to protect child exploitation and hinder terrorism. There is no safeguard from this being abused by police, such as putting criminal images on to your computer and framing you.

This is the official end of civil liberty in Australia.

Jail for speaking against lockdowns

Police recently started arresting individuals, identified as leaders in anti-lockdown protests, for incitement.

A 33-year old girl was tracked by police in her car and arrested through the car window on grounds of incitement (using Telegram to advertise anti-lockdown marches). Monica Smit was arrested and jailed for advocating freedom from lockdowns. She was offered bail if she recanted her position. She refused and lies in a Melbourne jail. Smit is the founder of Reignite Democracy Australia.

So now in Australia it is a crime worthy of imprisonment to merely advertise and encourage people to demonstrate.

Unprecedented surveillance

South Australia has regulated a draconian surveillance system for people in quarantine. They will be tracked by facial recognition and location apps. They will be randomly asked to identify their position by taking a selfie with their location. If they fail to comply within 15 minutes the police will be banging on the door.

Separation of families

The banning of interstate travel, even within a town, has caused the separation of some families. One 3-year old Queensland boy, Memphis Francis, was separated from his parents because of the border policy. It was only after he was portrayed on the front-page of newspapers that he was granted an exemption to be returned to his parents.

In some cases cancer patients are being denied treatment due to the border policy.

New world order

NSW chief health officer, Dr Kerry Chant, stated that post-lockdown Sydney will be a new world order. Chant explained the new vaccine requirements that will be in place when lockdowns stop. All business will have to be fully vaccinated with police checks. She said, 'We will be looking at what contact tracing looks like in the new world order'. Health minister Brad Hazzard has also referenced a new world order in July 2020.

Planned denial of medical care and food

30% of Victoria's population is unvaccinated, about 2 million people, but these have natural immunity.

Premier Dan Andrews has now said that unvaccinated people will not be able to leave their home for anything ever again. 'There is going to be a vaccinated economy, and you get to participate in that if you are vaccinated ... We're going to move to a situation where, to protect the health system, we are going lock out people who are not vaccinated.' Many doctors are already denying care to the unvaccinated.

Denial of a cure

Ivermectin is a proven early cure for Covid. This has been proved by scientific studies and by empirical evidence in multiple nations.

As a result of a huge rise in prescriptions for Ivermectin, the Australian regulator has banned it for treating Covid. The Therapeutic Goods Administration said that it was concerned people were taking Ivermectin instead of seeking vaccination.

Denial of alcohol

Alcohol being delivered to NSW homes is being confiscated if alcohol volume exceeds state-sanctioned limits. The state has enacted daily alcohol limits 'to ensure the safety of health staff and relatives'.

Residents have complained that care packages sent by family and friends have been searched for contraband.

Summary of totalitarianism

- All international travel forbidden (with few exceptions).
- Interstate travel has been banned, even within the same township.
- Lockdowns, despite very few Covid deaths.
- Zero-Covid policy destroying the economy for generations.
- Unprecedented surveillance in South Australia.
- Arrest and imprisonment of dissenters who have committed no crime.
- Arrest of people that refuse to comply with medical officer diktats (who have no elected political authority).
- Rough handling and brutal arrests of women on peaceful demonstrations.
- Brutal arrests, even of young women, for not wearing a mask.
- Firing rubber bullets into unarmed demonstrators.
- Spraying pepper spray into the eyes of women and children.
- Surveillance by drones and helicopters.
- Use of the military to enforce lockdowns.
- Taking control of social media accounts and devices.
- Currently, hotels used for mandatory quarantine whereby people are forced into solitary confinement under armed guard.
- Internment camps for mandatory quarantine.

By any measure, this is a police state.

Mass vaccination of kids

New South Wales Health Minister, Brad Hazzard, announced³ that a mass vaccination centre had been set up in the Qudos Arena for teenagers down to the age of 12 to be vaccinated without their parent's consent and without their presence being allowed. This is illegal under the Nuremberg Code and many human rights laws. For some unspecified reason there were many police officers present as well as nursing staff.

If mum or dad, or one of your family drop you, make sure that they stay out of the arena.

Health Minister.

³ See the press conference here, Twitter, @Elanders_Voice, 16 August

The Health Minister said nothing about Pfizer's updated health warning in June, especially for younger people, of myocarditis and pericarditis.

Someone filmed a girl taken from her father for testing positive, and being wrestled by police officers against her will. She was thrown to the ground screaming by three officers and held down before nursing staff in full PPE could inject her.⁴ Staff tried to stop someone recording what happened.

Note the following:

- Giving children a medical procedure without their parents consent is illegal.
- Giving anyone a medical procedure without informed consent is illegal.
- Why were police officers even there?
- Why did police officers wrestle this girl to the ground leaving her terrified and screaming for help?

Kids that have gone through this system have reported and filmed the very creepy process. It includes giant screens with the premier Gladys Berejiklian issuing propaganda just like a scene straight out of Orwell's 1984. They testified that they felt disturbed by the experience.

It was reported that three children had already died from the vaccination within days of the roll out. Three children immediately collapsed and two went into a coma plus other adverse events by the 19 August. I understand that now four have died.

⁴ The police and Scott Morrison have denied this is connected to vaccinations, but it was filmed and the child's distress is very real. If it was not at the testing centre where was it, why were there nurses in full PPE everywhere? It was clearly a medical facility, yet there were also full-kit police officers. This is not normal for a hospital. Why was the child forcibly removed from her father? No one has denied that the event actually took place. So, 1) the film shows multiple police officers manhandling the girl who was screaming. 2) Nurses in full PPE are present trying to get to the girl, so this is a medical clinic of some sort but it is not a normal hospital. 3) Why are police officers present in this medical facility? 4) Other staff try to stop the event being filmed. Why, if it is bona fide? 5) Who in authority thinks it is appropriate for several police officers to wrestle a distressed young girl? 6) To deny this one needs to explain where this occurred, why it occurred, why it is not about vaccination, and under whose authority. No one has done this.

Border controls between states

Artificial local borders

State borders can be odd in Australia. There are places where a state border runs through a single town. Thus there is a high street in the town centre where one side of the road is in one state and the other side of the road is in another state.

New border controls allegedly set up to inhibit the transmission of Covid (which if spread by aerosols just flies over any border control) have been established. This means that in certain townships it is illegal to cross the street except in very restricted circumstances. If you do, you have to quarantine for ten days.

This means that there are children that cannot get to their school; patients that cannot get to the hospital. Medical emergencies may have to take a patient two hours drive instead of crossing the boundary to the local hospital. There are people that cannot get to their work and business owners that cannot open their shops or premises.

This is not only beyond stupid, it is causing serious harm to these local people.

Travelling from outside the country

Travellers are required to quarantine in isolation in dedicated hotels for up to 14 days surrounded by police guards and windows that don't open. Drones are used to keep an eye on security. Poor standard meals are provided with no care for personal health requirements.

For a long testimony of this kind of quarantine, see the video of New Zealand Dr Sam Bailey interviewing a holistic medical practitioner who got caught in it for 22 days. On eventually leaving, a soldier guard explained to her that prisoners in state and military prisons are not treated as badly as she was – which was effectively extreme solitary confinement. She was even denied the ability to wash her clothes or bed linen and no outside exercise.

Social restrictions

Curfews

There is a curfew of 9pm to 5am set in certain places.

Explain to me how a curfew inhibits the spread of an airborne respiratory disease? Does Covid get tired and stop infecting people as badly in the daytime but is virulent at night?

This has only been introduced in order to enforce social control. It is a draconian measure to show that the authorities are in charge.

Facemasks

There are nationwide mask mandates. These have got to utterly insane levels; such as the demand to keep your mask on when drinking alcohol outdoors but you can take it off to drink coffee in a café.

I will not rehearse all the arguments and scientific papers demonstrating that facemasks are completely useless in stopping a virus. I have made the point often enough. But even if they were effective; what idiot could mandate the regulation above? This is either the work of someone with dementia or it is deliberately done to denigrate and demean the population in a psychological manner.

- The police have arrested elderly people in parks for not wearing a mask.
- Police have attacked children for not wearing a mask.
- Many police that arrested folk for not wearing a mask, were themselves not wearing one and filmed in the process.
- China has criticised the totalitarian measures.

Allowed exercise distance

People in lockdown are allowed to leave the house for short periods to exercise. In some states the distance you can travel is five miles but in others it is 1 kilometre. Usually, only one hour is allowed to leave the house.

In some states only the elderly are allowed to go to a shop for up to one hour a day. Everybody else must do their shopping on line. The premier has stated that there must be no browsing in shops. Just get what you need and leave quickly (see later).

Conjugal visits are allowed but you have to register your sexual partner with the authorities.

The population has been told by the chief medical officer (Kerry Chant) not to converse with people in the streets, not even friends and neighbours.

The police are guarding the streets, the air (via drones and helicopters) and even kid's playgrounds. Non-compliance results in arrest and a fine. These fines (which change) are:

- Meeting someone in the open: $1,000 fine.
- Driving in a car (unless allowed): $3,000 fine.
- Not wearing a facemask: $500 fine.
- Being outside after curfew: $1817 fine.

With helicopters surveying people from the sky and heavily armoured police marching in formation through residential areas looking for mask-less people, ordinary folk are saying that they feel like they are in a terrifying post-apocalyptic movie.

Talking prohibited

Dr Kerry Chant, the New South Wales chief health officer stated that people should not talk to each other outside. She said,

We need to limit our movements. We need to consider whenever we leave our house that anyone with us, anyone come into contact with, could convey the virus. So while it is in human nature to engage in conversation with others, to be friendly, unfortunately this is not the time to do that.⁵

NSW Health Minister, Brad Hazzard, also told people to not converse.

Browsing prohibited

The premier of New South Wales, Gladys Berejiklian, officially stated, without a hint of irony, that when people were shopping they were not allowed to browse. They had to get what they need and rush out quickly.

Insane cruel measures

Killing dogs

To stop people travelling to feed dogs locked up in kennels, the police in New South Wales have shot them dead on the orders of the Bourke Shire council.

In some countries this alone would have sparked a rebellion.

Travel restrictions

When a demonstration against lockdowns was planned in Sydney, over 1,500 police officers were deployed. On the Saturday morning of the protest, police set up roadblocks into downtown Sydney. Buses were cancelled. Trains had to pass by major stations until 2pm. Taxis and rideshare companies were threatened with fines of up to $500,000 if they took anyone to central Sydney between 9am and 3pm. Traffic on major roads into the city was held up, stopping 38,000 cars and issuing 137 fines. A helicopter circled over the start of the march.

One of the organisers of the protest, Anthony Khallouf, was arrested and sentenced to 8 months in prison.

In later demonstrations police also shut down the transport system.

In August the government expanded its ban on Aussies leaving the country, in place since March 2020. Previous exemptions, including emergencies, have been tightened. These are unconstitutional. One academic said that if you land in Australia, you could be trapped. However, special arrangements were made for celebrities like Nicole Kidman.

- A woman in Canberra was denied permission to fly to Queensland to see her dying father.
- A mother in New South Wales lost her baby after being unable to get timely treatment in Brisbane due to the time it took to fill out the paperwork to cross the state line.
- A grandmother was denied a permit to go to Melbourne to help care for her grandchildren while her daughter battles advanced breast cancer.

Separating families

Parents with Covid must isolate from their kids while NSW Health isn't taking their calls.

The Sydney Morning Herald highlighted the case of Ruba and Salim Sassine who have Covid. They are required to isolate from their underage kids (one with asthma), who are now showing signs of the virus. The Health service could offer them no help and not even come to test the kids, despite the parents begging and ringing several times. The parents have been isolating in a granny flat in the garden and telephoning their three children telling them how to cope with being ill.

Where else in the world would this even happen?

Government lies, evasions and confusion

Gladys Berejiklian (NSW)

Keeps changing her position on freedom. She has said that lockdowns will cease when vaccination rates reach 50%, then 70%, then 80%, then 80% plus low Covid numbers.

She's a complete mess. While the rest of the world is opening up and rebooting their economies, Australia will remain a backwater into 2022 and beyond. Our governments have entered a twilight zone of lockdown addiction.⁶

Brad Hazzard

In a filmed zoom conference call, Hazzard and his chief medical officer were interviewed by a team of commentators. These constantly tried to ask the advisor questions but Hazzard kept dominating the conversation and refusing to let the advisor speak. His behaviour was rude, authoritarian, evasive, and a complete discredit to a government minister. Eventually the time allowed ended and the advisor was unable to answer any questions at all.

Crypto roll out

I have already explained in a previous paper⁷ that the whole Covid crisis was engineered in order to achieve global compliance with a digital ID system that would enable the rollout of a central bank digital currency system. This is to try to resolve the growing global economy crisis caused by corruption in banking. This can be summarised as:

If Australia is a test-bed for global banking domination of society, then it would be logical that it would also be a test-bed for the new banking crypto currency.

This week an official at the Bank of International Settlements (high level global elite, above governments) formally announced that Australia would be amongst the first of three nations to test a new central bank crypto currency.

People who wondered how the most intelligent, civilised nation in Europe could collapse into total acceptance of Nazi power and propaganda now know because it has happened in first world democracies today – with Australia being the prime example.

Police are already firing rubber bullets on peaceful women and kids on demonstrations. When will 9mm bullets be next?

The reaction

The truckers

The truckers and hauliers ('Truckies' to Australians) are threatening to blockade the entire country and bring it to a halt. There are already problems resulting from the lockdowns with food shortages and increased poverty as people cannot work or run their business. The truckers are saying that they will block every main arterial road and collapse the economy if lockdowns and restrictions are not cancelled.

Construction workers

Angry construction workers staged a mass protest outside their union office, which had co-operated with government restrictive measures. The police were notable in not attacking hundreds of big, burly, tough men as they had attacked 70-year old women and ten-year old children.

The government responded by closing down all construction for some weeks.

The demonstrations

The numbers of people on marches is growing and the number of demonstrations is multiplying across the country. Marches in Melbourne have certainly been in the tens of thousands if not hundreds of thousands. The mainstream media either ignores this or downplays it. The last march in Melbourne was easily many scores of thousands (I saw it) but was reported as a small demo of just over three thousand people who became violent. In fact the protestors, of all ages and ranks, were totally peaceful until the police began to act against them with sheer brutality.

Worldwide condemnation

Reporters all over the world are highlighting the shattering authoritarianism of the Australian federal and state governments. The most common word used is 'tyranny'. This is becoming a continual focus of attention, second only to the withdrawal from Afghanistan.

The leaders of Australia are being held in complete derision, with many comparing them to Nazis and calling them various names.

Federal break-up?

One writer has reasoned that Australia is in such a perilous situation that it could face a break up of the federal system and states could secede.

He explains that many Auzzies feel more nationalistic about their state than the continent. Citizens have been shocked by the illegal repressive actions of the state and are boiling with anger. It appears that states are already unhappy about the federal system. Western Australia is naturally prosperous with huge amounts of natural resources and receives few benefits from the state. It is also a sparsely populated region with a massive amount of land with the ability to be more successful going alone. It has also refused to be as authoritarian as other states.

Furthermore, Australia has never produced a major manufacturing or industrial system, it relies heavily on selling its natural resources and buying items back from the Chinese. This makes it vulnerable.

Conclusion

This is despotism on an unprecedented scale in a modern democracy. It is unthinkable that this could happen in a Commonwealth country, especially such a pragmatic nation as Australia. It shows that nowhere is safe once the cabal desires to strike.

Australia is the testing ground where all the stops of fascism are being pulled out to see how far the elite can push people before a revolution starts.

It is also a testing ground so that the ruling cabal can identify difficulties in social control and remedy them with alternate strategies – then roll the programme out across the world. What is happening today in Australia will be happening to you in a few months.

Australia is now no mere parody of an old Eastern bloc state.
