

What is 'Woke'?

Introduction

In my paper, 'An explanation of modern terms' I explained 'woke' as follows:

'Woke' is a very recent term that has quickly become global in use. It originally arose out of the Black Lives Matter movement as a term for the awareness of racial problems. People who understood this were 'woke'; i.e. awakened to the issues. However, it quickly became more general in its use and is now applied to a range of issues pertinent to Social Justice Warriors in general. Thus it includes all the radical, Leftist agendas: Feminism, multiculturalism, racism, Transgenderism etc; in other words, the whole Cultural Marxist strategy.

This is a fair assessment, although there was a use of 'woke', meaning to be awakened, amongst Blacks in America as far back as the 1940s; but its popular use has been recent.

This is going to be a short and critical assessment of Wokeness, which is now dominating culture; indeed, is determined to destroy culture. Woke people should be warned that it will offend.

Summary of background

For over 100 years Satan has been gathering his forces and implementing his strategies to be master of the political world ruled through proxies. I have explained this many times. There are many strands to this programme: the rise of technology, the growth and finessing of energy sources, globalisation, easy global communication, globalised banking and finance, centralisation of commerce, concentrations of power and so on. The globalising movement is about securing worldwide control over vital assets and centralising them into the hands of a few satanic oligarchs and plutocrats.

Satan's individual assets, such as John D Rockefeller, began centralising oil in the 1890s, then the medical industry after 1901 (and especially after 1910)¹ and then revising history education after 1908. Other satanic tools did similar work so that commercial interests worldwide are now centred in a very few controlling families, hidden in layers of corporations. 99% of the world's wealth is controlled by less than 1% of rich people. Just two corporations control most of the media and Big Pharma (Vanguard and BlackRock).

Yet the greatest changes in recent decades have been in culture. The Devil ramped up his attack on Christianity in the religious world around the mid-1800s. This was centred in a direct attack on the authority and authenticity of the Bible, focused in the Documentary Hypothesis, religious liberalism, modernism, mechanism, evolutionary theory, Higher Criticism, emerging Pentecostalism, revivalism, occultism, sectarianism and so on. This is well documented. What is less understood is the direct attack on the Christian principles undergirding society and culture in the West that has been underway since Gramsci.

There has been a concerted attack on Western 'Christian' culture since 1921. The satanic purpose in this has been to destroy all the Christian influences and principles in the West that developed over 2,000 years – especially in America and Britain. These institutions include essential societal traditions that have been axiomatic in all cultures since ancient times and Christian principles for 2,000 years. They include:

- The recognition of a supreme, personal God as sovereign over all.
- The recognition that Jesus Christ is the mediator of that one God to all men and that the Gospel is the basis of our knowledge of God and salvation.
- The fundamental importance of marriage of one man to one wife for the procreation and upbringing of children.
- The importance of work for a fair wage according to quality and produce.
- The importance of good, unbiased education to enable critical thinking and discernment.
- The freedom to worship without hindrance.
- The freedom of opinion, speech and expression in all forms of media. This includes the right to reasonably offend.
- Freedom of movement and assembly.
- The commitment of the citizen to the state and to obey democratically agreed laws based on the principles of universal moral law.
- Representative government (in Britain this has been formally recognised since the 13th century and was previously implicit in Saxon Moots and before that in Celtic gatherings under Druids).
- A fair and just judiciary that upholds true justice for victims of crime and punishes criminals of any rank. Habeas Corpus and trial by a jury of peers.

We could go on but this will suffice.

The attack on the institutions of Western culture was a satanic programme but was implemented chiefly in practice by Cultural Marxism. This began with Antonio Gramsci,² from about 1921, but continued mostly with the Frankfurt School and also Fabianism to a lesser extent.³ For a detailed analysis of this see my paper on Cultural Marxism. It is Cultural Marxism that led to Political Correctness, then hate laws, social division into multiple victimised minorities⁴ and attacks on Christian values. Most people identifying as Social Justice Warriors, or even Social Democrats and Liberals, have no idea that they have been manipulated since birth (mostly through Socialists in the education system) to gradually imbibe Marxist concepts as a precursor to social revolution.

It is this background of Cultural Marxism that has directly led to what is now identified as Wokeness. The Woke agenda is the latest manifestation of a long stealth attack on the foundations of Western culture. It is not a good thing (though it claims the moral high ground) but is an intrinsically evil strategy within a satanic programme leading to world domination by a cabal of Luciferians.

So what are Woke people like?

² Antonio Gramsci [1891–1937] was an Italian political theorist and Communist activist. He was imprisoned when the Communist Party was banned by the Fascists in 1926 and died shortly after his release. Gramsci's most notable writings include Letters from Prison (1947). He is considered to be a pioneer of Cultural Marxism.

³ The Fabian Society was more of an academic Marxist think tank. It was an organisation of Socialists aiming at the gradual rather than revolutionary achievement of Socialism through dissemination of doctrines and politics. The Frankfurt School strategies were aimed at social destruction by occupying positions of power and influence in all institutions to enable a social revolution.

⁴ Such as Feminists, BLM, Gays etc.

Characteristics of Woke people

Selfish and self-centred

Firstly, Woke people are selfish. They are unable to see the good in anyone outside their camp. Indeed, they are full of bile and spleen for anyone who disagrees with them.

They gather in holy huddles where all in their camp are righteous and everyone outside the camp is evil.

They care nothing about nuance of argument but concentrate on establishing their views through vilification of others. Often an ad hominem argument is used when they cannot overturn the opposing stance through logic. Everything is based on them and how something upsets them (whether it is sensible or not). Shouting bile at opponents is common.

Their thinking is linear and constricted, based upon what pleases them not what the facts are.

Ignorant

This is best exemplified in the total ignorance of history. Woke people make statements and decisions arising from history with no understanding about that history. This is exemplified in statements about slavery or colonialism. They not only have no understanding about British history but also show no awareness of world history or even the basics of this.

While centring their attack on Britain and America for slavery issues, they show no knowledge of the worst offender in slavery, which is Islam. Not only did Muslim sultanates and caliphates kill over 700 million people in 1400 years, they terrorised nations from Cornwall to South East Asia enslaving very many millions. Muslims are still trafficking sex slaves to this very day.

If you want to criticise nations for historic slavery then why attack the two nations that ended slavery and enforced this globally but ignore nations that are still engaging in it today after a period of 1400 years doing it?

Every nation in history has used slaves going back to ancient times; no one is immune. However, it was Britain that began the abolition of slavery movement in 1834 and America 30 years later. In fact, the Atlantic trade in slavery only lasted 200-300 years. Many nations conducted slavery far longer than that. The Greek and Roman empires were founded on slavery over many centuries.

Then again, Woke people have no clue about White slavery. White Europeans were the victims of Muslim slave traders, such as the Barbary Pirates, for centuries until the US navy put an end to it. White women were captured as far away as Cornwall coastal villages and all across Europe. In fact the word 'slave' derives from the Slavs that were constantly captured and enslaved by Muslim attacks on the Balkans.

Even in America, there were White slaves before Black ones. Many poor people sold themselves into indenture in order to survive. Native American tribes also captured White people for slaves. White children were treated as virtual slaves cleaning chimneys right into the Victorian era.

Even colonialism is misunderstood.

No imperial system is perfect and every form of colonialism involves bad decisions. People are flawed. However, it is wrong to consider that the British Empire was an evil institution that had no altruistic value whatsoever. The British Empire was not like Leopold's Belgian Empire that cut children's hands off as trophies.

It is true that British colonialism often began as commercial interests invested in the resources of a country like Africa or India. However, it is also true that it advanced in the wake of missionary ventures into new lands where the overriding principle was to do good to the native people. The missionaries were often trained as doctors and brought proper health care to natives as well as the Gospel. Indeed, it was the Gospel that brought tribes together in peace after centuries of internecine tribal warfare. Such was the case with the courageous Mary Slessor who did so much good to the people of Calabar (West Africa) and stopped people killing each other.

It was only after mission stations had been formed and tribes began accepting civilised ideas that British gunboats began to also set up stations to govern those areas in a paternal manner. The origins had been altruistic.

The benefits of civilisation amongst tribal people are also ignored. No sane person would want to go back to living in a mud hut and constantly fighting tribal wars. The British brought roads, jobs, railways, proper housing, reservoirs, aqueducts, bridges, medicine, agriculture and a host of other good things. African tribes had not invented the wheel or the ploughshare before the British arrived.

It was the British that turned wildernesses in Africa into prosperous farms. In fact South Africa was purchased (not stolen) from the local Hottentot (Khoikhoi peoples) Bushman tribes because it was a wilderness and swamp. They couldn't sell it quick enough.

In India the infrastructure brought by the Raj still continues to this day: railways, beam engines, roads, bridges etc. The British not only united the disparate tribes into a confederation but established an efficient civil service, which continues to this day. India would not be the powerhouse it is now without the colonialism of the British.

It was not only artefacts, but the British genuinely loved the Indian people. Army officers and civil servants would bring their families to live there; both Cliff Richard and Joanna Lumley spent their childhood there. Indian servants brought up their children. The amah (nursemaid) would become a member of the family. They loved the culture so much that they brought much of it back to England, including curry, bungalows, spices, chutney, kedgeree, a cummerbund and various sauces. A huge number of Indian words were included in the English vocabulary, including: veranda, avatar, bandana, cushy, dinghy, dungaree, guru, gymkhana, jodhpurs, jungle, karma, loot, pukka, pyjamas, shampoo, thug, tickety-boo, toddy and even 'Blighty'.

The proudest title of Queen Victoria was 'Empress of India' and she delighted in her Indian subjects. Indian princes were often entertained at court and one Indian man in particular remained in court circles for years. Mohammed Abdul Karim was an attendant of Victoria for the final 14 years of her reign gaining great maternal affection. There was never any overt racism in court against Indian people.

When a new recipe was commissioned to celebrate the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II, the chosen meal, created by Constance Spry and Rosemary Hume, was 'Coronation

Chicken',⁵ which was just cold curried chicken. A similar meal was 'Jubilee Chicken', prepared for the silver jubilee of George V in 1935.

There was no commercial interest in bringing moral reforms to India. There was no imperial advantage in outlawing suttee (wife burning) and thuggee (banditry); which just created administrative stress and military effort. These were done in order to benefit the Indian people based on universal moral principles. Attempts were also made to ameliorate the worst effects of the caste system, which sadly still plagues Indian people.

One can investigate the evils of the Raj but this must be balanced with a fair assessment of all the benefits brought.

Without British colonial expansion, millions of people from empire backgrounds would not now be living in relative affluence, either in the west or in native lands, but would still be living in mud huts, walking miles for water and still waiting to invent the wheel; not to mention constantly killing each other and in some cases eating their enemies. There is a reason why millions of migrants are anxious to get to Britain and escape Sub-Saharan Africa, Libya, Algeria, India, Pakistan, Afghanistan and many more nations.

However, none of this bothers Woke people who just condemn British colonialism outright with no consideration of historical facts.

Nasty and Intolerant

The Woke attacks on people are excessively nasty and involve micro-investigations.

One example is the recent attack on poor Ollie Robinson who took seven wickets in his first test match for England against New Zealand aged 27 on 2 June 2021. Nasty Woke activists decided to do an archaeological investigation of sinful material and discovered Tweets from 2012 and 2013 that were supposedly racist and sexist. Immediately Robinson was removed from the England squad pending investigation. Yet the Tweets were from Robinson as an immature teenager over a decade ago. The racist Tweet was not even racist, just language of a White teenager trying to act cool like a Black rapper. Despite this, Robinson issued a grovelling apology, which cut no ice. It was later discovered that Robinson was not alone but the whole squad had Tweeted unsavoury things in their past. If everyone was judged on the basis of what they did as teenagers, who would stand?

What is to be gained by unearthing years old Tweets (which themselves are meaningless and ephemeral)? All it has done is ruin the best day of a promising professional cricketer's life. It serves no constructive social purpose.

But this is what Woke people do. They discover tiny amounts of 'erring' material from the past and then try to use it against individuals so that they can claim a scalp for the cause.

But it doesn't even have to be erring material. Very often scalps are claimed from people who did no wrong whatsoever, but their lives were either thrown into turmoil or completely ruined. A short list of these would include:

- The popular teacher from Batley who did nothing wrong and who is now living in hiding with his family for showing a cartoon to illustrate the need of free speech and open discussion amongst students. He was eventually cleared of causing deliberate offence by the school but is still under death threats and his life is ruined.

⁵ Cold chicken, curry cream sauce and dressing.

- The Scottish university student Lisa Keogh who was placed under investigation by Abertay University for challenging Woke orthodoxy. Her crime? She defined women as having vaginas and that biological women should not have to compete with biological men in contact sports. The two months long (!) investigation coincided with her law finals, causing great stress (she is also a mother). The student disciplinary board eventually dismissed the complaints made by Woke students.
- Maya Forstater who was accused of being Transphobic and lost her job. She claimed that this violated the Equality Act 2010 (being fired for her philosophical beliefs). In 2019 the Employment Tribunal found against her. However, the Employment Appeal Tribunal concluded that belief in biological sex is important, real and immutable and met the legal test of an important philosophical position. This established her view as protectable under UK laws. [NB. this sets a legal precedent.]
- Marion Millar, a Scottish Feminist facing criminal charges for expressing gender critical beliefs.
- Feminist Posie Parker, who is constantly vilified for asserting that women are immutably biological and not a matter of choice.

These, and many others, are being attacked for what they honestly think and express. Woke activists police thought – you are not allowed to have certain opinions or they will attack you and try to ruin your life. Many Christian principles are now either illegal under hate laws or attract attacks from Woke insurgents. This is no accident. The Woke agenda is both Left-wing and satanic and seeks to destroy Christian ethical principles. If you deny homosexuality as being normal, or deny the Trans agenda, or the claims of radical fourth wave Feminism, or fail to criticise White privilege and colonialism – you will be attacked.

Irrational

Woke activists get up to all sorts of irrational behaviour. Recently they have demanded the removal of a statue of Cecil Rhodes from Oriel College, Oxford and a portrait of the Queen from a common room.

Now I have no brief for Rhodes at all. He was a plunderer of African resources and used his wealth to establish many aspects of the global elite, such as what became the Milner Group. However, he also gave money to charitable projects and donated a trust fund to Oriel College, for which they rewarded him with a statue.

Now this statue is part of the masonry of the wall in which it stands and it would be incredibly difficult to remove without destroying the whole wall of the building, which is a listed building anyway. Why bother when hardly anyone notices the statue and most students wouldn't even know whom it was representing. This makes no sense. In any case, the college is still benefiting from the endowment, which in turn benefits students. Why shouldn't it celebrate the giver of this money? The statue doesn't represent Rhodes' colonial endeavours but his donation to the college. The statue is not on public property but on a private building. Only a fool would get hot under the collar for such a trivial private matter. What right have Marxist activists got to tell trustees of a building to tear part of it down at huge expense?

The latest Woke outrage is at the portrait of the Queen in a Magdalen College common room. How irrational is that; it is the monarch of the nation? What will they do next? Demand that the Queen's image be removed from currency or postage stamps? The Queen's portrait appears everywhere. Are they going to demand that British Legion clubs remove such from their walls?

Ironically, it was Queen Elizabeth that ruled during the period when most of the Commonwealth nations were allowed to become independent. Of all the monarchs to complain about they picked the wrong one. Why not scream about Leopold II of Belgium who committed terrible atrocities to African natives? Why not complain about Muslim rulers like Timur Lenk (Tamurlaine) who committed the most brutal atrocities against dozens of nations, including killing everyone in many towns and erecting towers of human heads 15 feet high? Why not complain about Genghis Khan who slowly boiled leaders of towns he conquered to death over three days? Why not complain about Icenic Queen Boudicca who killed and beheaded everyone she found in Colchester and London? Why not complain about Queen Mary Tudor who burned many innocent people to death because she didn't like their religion, as did the Spanish Queen Isabella who also instituted the Spanish Inquisition in 1478 and supported Columbus's expedition in 1492? The list could go on and on. Yet Elizabeth II (whatever conspiracy theories abound) is not well known for killing her own citizens or expanding imperialism.

The Woke support of Transgenderism is beyond rationality. Biology exists; it is immutable. If you have an 'X' and a 'Y' chromosome then you are male; if you have two 'X' chromosomes you are female. Nothing can change this: not surgery, not hormone treatment, not brainwashing, not mental disease. Biological facts are immutable.

When people are mentally ill, especially with some sort of dysphoria,⁶ the worst thing you can do is strengthen that illness. If someone wants to become a different sex then they are mentally ill and need help. The worst thing you can do is give life-changing surgery, hormone pills and bolster their illness. This is especially true in confused children and teenagers who have succumbed to conditioning that has damaged their perception. Thousands of Trans people have reversed the surgery and explained how changing sex ruined their lives when they were at a bad psychological point.

The demand for society to undergird this nonsense is actually damaging Trans people themselves, who may one day wake up. It is not sane to make all of society comply with the feelings of mentally ill people who want to pretend that they can change their chromosomes. Making society believe and practice a lie is not a way to help Trans people

And where do you draw a line? Has society got to accept that people can identify as cats, dogs, snakes and so on? Some people already claim to identify as such. Or even as inanimate objects or as babies? At what point do you say, 'This is madness'. Yet Woke people go crazy if you don't fully support the Trans agenda and call people by their chosen pronoun, of which there are now scores, including plural terms.⁷

Woke people are just irrational.

Angry and constantly offended by microscopic events

Woke people are just angry – all the time. They actively look for things to get angry about so that they can criticise and attack someone. The objects of their anger are:

- People who deny climate change and global warming – even though CO₂ is a miracle molecule that promotes green growth and provides oxygen in the atmosphere through plant photosynthesis. The whole global warming mantra is a fallacy (in fact global temperature has been dropping for many years).
- People who deny Transgender issues. [See above.]
- People who are White – this is just racism.

⁶ A state of unease or generalised dissatisfaction with life. The opposite of euphoria.

⁷ I believe the latest count is about 150.

- Colonialism – well that affects virtually every nation on Earth. All continents have formed empires of one sort or another since ancient times. This includes Black empires, such as that of Shaka Zulu, whose empire was bigger than Alexander's. Most Woke people come from privileged Western nations, all of whom were part of a colonial system at some time or other. E.g the British Empire, the Dutch colonies, the Belgian colonies, the French colonies, the Spanish colonies, Portuguese colonies, the American areas of suzerainty (e.g. Puerto Rico) and annexation (Hawaii), the German colonies and annexations, Polish annexations; the Austrian Empire; Italian expansion into Africa and the Roman empire, the Greek empire, the Persian empire, the Babylonian Empire, the Assyrian empire, Egyptian expansions (e.g. into Canaan), the Hittite empire, the Russian federation and so on. No Woke person is immune from being tainted by colonialism in their own history.
- Homophobia. People can be courteous to Gay folk even if they personally believe homosexuality to be sinful. However, controlling thought by laws and convention is very wrong.
- Islamophobia. Criticism of a religion for its flaws is not wrong. Woke people criticise and attack Christianity all the time in vehement ways but do not allow valid criticism of Islam. This fear of racism is why the police failed to protect thousands of young girls in Britain from Muslim rape gangs.

Binary

In the world of Woke there are two camps. You are either vulnerable, oppressed and offended or you are a bigot and a heretic.

The rise of the doctrine of Intersectionalism enables Woke people to fit into any of the many victimised, oppressed sub groups - whether there is any evidence of oppression or not. These groups include gender identity issues, Feminism, sexuality, Blackness and so on.

Everything is black and white to these people. They understand nothing about nuance or historical context. They are just trigger-happy.

Self-righteous

Self-righteous people are always right (even when ignorant) and always make issues pertinent to their subjective feelings rather than logic. If something triggers and upsets them, then the issue is bad and must be attacked. They don't care about other people's feelings or even the facts of the matter in hand, they only care that they are offended.

It is sad that these people think that they are holy and virtuous when they are inflicting cruel life-changing damage on other people through their vindictive attacks.

Hypocritical

There is so much hypocrisy abounding today that it is hard to keep up.

The leaders of Woke Black Lives Matter are avowed Marxists, they openly state this. Yet one of them has purchased four expensive houses in affluent (mostly White) areas. The embezzlement of donated funds to BLM has also been exposed in the Press.

Ultra Woke couple Harry and Meghan Windsor preach to others constantly on many trigger issues, including Climate Change, gender issues, Feminism and other matters. Yet they themselves live in a mansion with 16 water guzzling bathrooms and travel to global warming conferences in private jet airliners, as do other hypocritical celebrities like Leonardo di Caprio.

Boris Johnson had the audacity, after committing billions to climate change issues, to travel to a climate change G7 conference in St Ives in a private jet using five times the fuel of a train journey. Many of the attendees of this G7 hoopla were pictured not wearing facemasks and not social distancing and even partying. None of the diplomats involved had to quarantine like ordinary folk after international flights. President Biden even flew over several armoured limousines for his entourage, then had to dump them because they couldn't manoeuvre through Cornish country lanes. Yet he champions the need to fight global warming. When Justin Trudeau returned to Canada, he was exempted the 10-day quarantine in a detention hotel that Canadians have to obey by law, spending only ten hours in isolation. The hypocrisy is brash.

The hypocrisy is prominent in the rich classes. This has been recently evidenced in rich crowds not social distancing or wearing masks at Ascot, crowds allowed at Wimbledon, crowds allowed at European Cup football matches, yet miserable stringent laws applying to funerals and weddings.

Racist

Woke people are not only racist but they want to create a new apartheid in the West, dividing White people from ethnic minorities. Some institutions have already enabled this (see later).

The racism of Woke activists is astounding and overt.

Priyamvada Gopal, a professor at Cambridge University, Tweeted, 'White lives don't matter'. After this was deleted by Twitter she said, 'I stand by my tweets ... They were very clearly speaking to a structure and ideology.'

Tommy Curry, associate professor at Texas A&M, is Black and specialises in Critical Race Theory. In a podcast⁸ he says, 'In order to be equal, in order to be liberated, some White people might have to die'. He rejects the ideas of Martin Luther King that White people can be regarded as reasonable. In other words, people cannot be considered as rational because of their race. He also denounces the idea of the integrationist model of race relations and demands that White people despise themselves.

BLM protestors have sprayed 'Kill White people' on US highway walls and properties.

A Yale University psychiatrist, Dr Aruna Khilanani, told pupils that she fantasised about shooting White people in the head with a revolver because it would do the world a f...ing favour and put a bounce in her step.⁹ This is the level of insanity that is placed upon schoolkids. Her lecture was titled, 'The psychopathic problem of the white mind'.

Black comedienne Sophie Duker joked about killing white people on Frankie Boyle's BBC show.

For information, according to the FBI, in 2019 Blacks killed 566 Whites while Whites killed 246 Blacks. Blacks are 13% of the population of the US but are responsible for over 50% of all homicides.

The US police kill double the amount of White people every year than Blacks.

⁸ 'Context of White Supremacy'.

⁹ Express, 5 June 2021,

Violent

This is best exemplified in the Black Lives Matter Movement. Not only is this an openly avowed Marxist movement, it is a violent terrorist movement.

Part of being Woke involves fully supporting BLM. Thus you have the absurdity of football players in British leagues bowing on one knee to this movement before soccer games or having 'BLM' on their shirts. This is an act of kowtowing¹⁰ to an organisation that seeks the death of White people, getting rid of the police and has killed many and also burned down homes and stores during the 2020 riots. It has even shot children and women in cars. How can any sane person support such a movement?

The June 2021 riots led by BLM resulted in burned shops, homes, properties and many deaths. One young woman was pulled out of her car and executed on the spot.

Taking the knee is certainly not about showing respect to principles of tolerance and respect for minorities in general. It arose directly out of the BLM and in particular the death of George Floyd, which was usurped as a figurehead for BLM.¹¹

Woke people are insane in their denunciation of White people. Many have openly stated that they personally want to kill all White people, or have said that all White people are a stain on the Earth to be eradicated. These people are actually leading a privileged or even affluent life that was enabled by White people. Without White people these angry activists would have nothing. It is a crime to openly state that you want to kill people or urge others to kill certain people; yet these activists go unopposed while peaceful protesting old women on an anti-lockdown demonstrations get thrown into police vans, manhandled and arrested. One old lady in lockdown was arrested for sitting on a park bench feeding the birds.

Doctrines of Wokeness

Critical race theory

This challenges established approaches to racial justice and the social impacts of racism: e.g. social problems are created more by societal structures and culture than by individuals. Its intent is to create guilt in White people by asserting that White culture is systemically racist and full of hatred. Recent history demonstrates the falsity of this claim.

The fundamental claims of Critical Race Theory are logical fallacies:

- Your skin colour defines who you are. A White person is a privileged supremacist; a Black person is a victim.
- Racism is present in all social interactions because it is endemic in White colonial culture.
- If you are White you are racist and guilty; either consciously or unconsciously. White people must despise themselves and be ashamed.
- If you are from an ethnic minority then you are a victim of a system that is rigged against you. All Black people are victims.

¹⁰ Genuflecting.

¹¹ Even this needs nuance. Floyd was no hero but a long-term, violent petty criminal who was already dying due to a Fentanyl overdose he had just taken. The knee-hold used by the police was part of police training methods taught by the Israeli Defence Force. The officer did exactly as he was trained to do. His court case was fixed with the jury being in fear of their lives.

- Seeing yourself as a victim is the beginning of personal empowerment and taking back control.

Apart from being inherently racist, this is a Cultural Marxist attack on Western societal principles using the smokescreen of creating equity for victims of racism. When problems erupt (such as BLM protests) it is the fault of Western cultural norms causing minorities to become violent. This attack is usually centred on the problem of White supremacy. Thus George Floyd was not a career criminal but a victim of society.

Like Intersectionality, it ignores actual facts, such as that BAME groups do well in school;¹² that ethnic minorities frequently find positions of power in politics, entertainment and commerce and that many minority figures are vastly rich, despite whatever disadvantages are supposed to exist. There has been a Black president of the US; two women British Prime ministers and multiple other very successful BAME / Gay / female people. The House of Commons is populated by many Black, Asian and other minorities as well as many women. The chancellor is BAME, as is the Home Secretary. The prime focus of the current music industry is centred on Black forms, such as RAP. Many White male teenagers aspire to be Black and talk like Black street punks. Where is the problem?

Critical race theory ignores the capability of individual drive and focuses attention instead on a claimed hindrance of White cultural norms. It established Groupthink instead of rational criticism; a concept rather than individualism. The agenda is all about a collectivist ideology that everyone has to submit to. Wherever collectivist concepts of acceptance and discrimination (the good group versus the bad groups) have abounded, it always led to the worst crimes in human history with millions killed: the persecution of Slavs and Jews by Nazis; the persecution of Kulaks by the Bolsheviks; the persecution of Christians and Hindus by Muslims; and many more.

The real purpose is to attack the fundamental Christian principles of Western culture.

Critical Race Theory has been thoroughly debunked by psychology professor Jordan Peterson.

Colonialism

This follows from critical race theory.

The idea is to identify features of colonialism in society and then overturn them. This can be statues of slave traders, offensive architecture, names of places, plaques, books, paintings, subjects taught in universities and so on.

The great ogre in this is usually White supremacy. Everything White is evil and must be attacked just for being White. Today Kant, Shakespeare and Keynes are all being attacked for furthering a White intellectual tradition, perpetuating a colonial legacy. They normalise a White Euro-centric and Enlightenment viewpoint.

Universities are constantly attacked for being colonial and racist. Yet Non-White people make up 13% of the UK population (2011 census) while BAME folk make up 20% of university students. In 2020 36% of White students got 1st-class degrees. 18% of Black students did the same but 28% of Asian and 32% of mixed ethnicities got firsts. 45% of Black and White students got a 2.1, as did 44% of Asian and 47% of mixed ethnicities. Not much racism there.

¹² Less so for Caribbean Blacks.

The Equality and Human Rights Commission showed that in the three and a half years up to January 2019 universities received an average of only 2.3 total staff complaints and 3.6 student complaints of racial harassment. Less than one complaint a year.

Despite this, Woke activists are pushing for segregation policies, such as Black-only living quarters and graduation ceremonies. Birmingham University has already established LGBT-only halls of residence.

It is already being demanded that White students must be taught about White privilege, White fragility, White allyship, micro-aggressions and Intersectionality, and will be expected to undertake radicalised unconscious-bias training. It's all about division in society.

Intersectionality

This is the doctrine of identity politics.

It is a gobble-gook, Cultural Marxist sophistry that serves to bolster the factionalism in society, setting people against each other. It divides society into multiple sub-groups who are told that they are victims of various sorts of oppression by the White, Christian, colonial, establishment.

In theory it is a tool, or analytical framework, for identifying a person's social and political identity which combine and which attract discrimination. So victim groups would include: homosexuals, transgender people, disabled people, Muslims, Feminists, Black and minority folk, and so on. While all of these are victims of Western society, Intersectionality combines groups into the biggest victims on a pecking order. So you are more discriminated against if you are both Gay and disabled; but you are even more victimised if you are Gay, disabled and Black. In all cases the cause of discrimination is White privilege.

It refers to the interacting and overlapping social identities in Western society. It looks for ways to get offended and react with anger. Thus a Black woman may face discrimination not because she is Black or a woman (there are laws against discrimination on this basis) but due to the combination (Intersectionality) of factors.

It really is a framework of ambiguity, arbitrary schism and irrational nonsense that ignores the personal qualities of individuals who manage to rise above any social disadvantages and make something of their lives.

Candace Owen has the 'disadvantages' of being both Black and a woman and yet has risen to great prominence and influence internationally and has no feelings of being a victim. Indeed, she proclaims that BAME people are privileged to live in Western societies where they have had advantages to prosper and build good lives because of Western culture.

In reality Intersectionality is another tool to manufacture division, stir up hatred and attack Western Christian principles of culture.

Cultural appropriation

This is taking things from a different culture to your own. Instead of seeing this as a compliment, Woke people see it as theft.

Oddly, taking things from Black culture have historically led to the betterment of Black people – and this is ignored.

Take for example the Blues. The Blues is an intrinsically Black music format, derived originally from the call and repeat songs that workers would sing while labouring on farms. From this developed Rural or Country Blues, then Ragtime, Traditional Jazz, Folk, Country, Rock n' Roll, Rhythm and Blues and finally rock music.

In the early 1960s Blues musicians in America were on their uppers. After an initial prosperity in the 1940s – early 1950s they were struggling. Black people paid no attention to their own historical music form. Many Rural Blues players went back to picking cotton, they were so broke. Then packaged tours of multiple Blues players came to Britain, on the back of the Folk and Skiffle boom, and this led to a huge interest in Blues music. Quickly British musicians were playing Blues and forming Blues bands. Some of these, such as The Rolling Stones, Manfred Mann, The Kinks and many others, developed further and became huge rock/pop stars – originally based on Blues music. Eric Clapton, Mick Taylor, John Mayall, Keith Richards and Van Morrison owe everything to American Blues musicians.

Many greats of Blues culture were thus able to come to Britain in their own right, touring all over. This included Muddy Waters, Champion Jack Dupree, T-Bone Walker, John Lee Hooker, Shaky Horton, Sonny Terry and Brownie McGhee, Big Bill Broonzy, Mississippi Fred McDowell, and many more. Gradually the American public picked up on this as British artists repackaged the Blues and sold it back to them. This enabled American Bluesmen to carve out a good living for decades and the interest increased. BB King played gigs most of the year until he died.

Now this cultural appropriation did vast amounts of good to Black people.

The idea of cultural appropriation, as stealing intellectual property without permission, is just plain stupid. Who is there to give the required permission? Surely adopting forms from another culture is good for multiculturalism? Cultural sharing is a good thing.

But Woke people do exactly the same thing, they arbitrarily change the sex or race of characters in dramas when this contravenes logic and historical accuracy. The recent TV drama about Anne Boleyn is a classic example. Seeking to promote its Wokeness, the production team employed a Black actress as the Redhead with very white skin, Anne Boleyn. Needless to say, the drama utterly flopped. Truth matters little to Woke people as long as their agenda is being pursued.

Green issues

Climate change politics, global warming activism and sustainable energy projects.

Since I have written on this extensively elsewhere I won't develop it here.

What is ironic is that the Woke people take the moral high ground on this but have no clue about the real facts of the matter that are always opposite to their agenda. Neither do they seem to know that the people benefiting from climate change policies and those running the narrative, are globalist corporations that are making billions out of sustainable projects while destroying nature. Biomass pellets is but one example.¹³

Despite nothing in the Green agenda making any sense (e.g. CO₂ is vital to the Earth and we need more of it), Woke activists heavily invest in it.

¹³ Chopping down ancient trees in Virginia, pulping them into small pellets, transporting them to Britain to be burned, which has a carbon footprint far exceeding using local coal-based power stations for energy. How is that green?

Matrixocracy

This is the eradication of meritocracy in favour of Groupthink, selection by genetic diversity and unitary ideological bias. Merit has no value in selection of candidates; what matters is ensuring racial, gender equality.

This policy has, over recent decades, ensured that poor quality people end up running corporations, services and institutions and it explains why nothing works in this country anymore. Customer service especially has crashed and burned.

People regularly get jobs and promotion on the basis of their gender or ethnic status rather than merit. Such folk have been found to: not be able to write a cohesive business letter; not be competent in basic numeracy; unable to conduct a proper business telephone conversation and even incapable of filing things logically; and so on.

Abolition of the police and prisons

By focusing attention of the death of George Floyd, BLM intensified its goal of defunding and then abolishing the police. All police are racists, according to Woke doctrine, and they kill lots of Black people.

Of course this is just subjective rhetoric not based on facts. There are very many Black policemen in Britain and America, and Black policemen have killed White people. In fact, the biggest killer of Black people in Britain and America is other Black people.

We saw from BLM protests what happens when the police refuse to act in a certain area – the place is burned down and people are killed. In many cases BLM protestors burned down the shops of Black proprietors. Police morale is so low that in one American city the entire riot squad resigned en masse.

In a society where violence is increasing and deaths from stabbing are rampant, the idea that we should abolish the police is ludicrous. In 2019/20 there were 145 homicides in London alone, up from 122 the previous year. In 2019/20 there were almost 15,600 knife crimes up from 5,800 in 2015/16.

The police may be a flawed organisation deserving of much criticism, but to do away with a law and order force is preposterous.

Woke tactics

Toppling statues

These acts are just random. Statues of decent philanthropists that gave millions to social work and charity, such as Edward Colston in Bristol, are toppled while other statues of very dubious people are left alone. One questionable example is the relief by Eric Gill at the front of the BBC of a man with a naked boy (formally, Prospero and Ariel on Broadcasting House in London).¹⁴ Gill raped his two daughters and the family dog while the statue has clear paedophilia overtones. No one has complained about that. This is part of the historical ignorance of Woke people.

Offence archaeology

This is trawling meticulously through the past history of a suspect in order to find the slightest fault against Wokeness (chiefly Critical Race Theory). Once an offending item is discovered (usually a Tweet), even from the distant past, or even if it is taken out of context, it is used as ammunition to get the suspect cancelled --often getting them to lose their livelihood.

Toby Young was deplatformed and lost five significant posts (including as a government advisor on education) because of a past article in the Spectator where the editor made a joke headline for effect titled 'Confessions of a porn addict'. Young (who is happily married and not a porn addict) was considered a danger to children and a bad influence and cancelled.

De-platforming speakers / cancel culture

This is now a popular student sport, again that makes no sense. If you disagree with a speaker, why not attend the lecture and then ask leading questions?

Instead of acting rationally, all sorts of people have been de-platformed. Some of these, such as Anne Widdicombe, were de-platformed on the basis of a lie and with no valid reason.

Classical music composer Daniel Elder has been cancelled for condemning lawlessness. He criticised the arson resulting from BLM protests; especially the 'I will breathe' rally following the death of George Floyd. Because he condemned a crime, he has been called a White supremacist and suffered hate mail. For writing two sentences on social media his flourishing career has been axed. His publisher has rejected him and choral directors are refusing to programme his music or let him sing. The actions he condemned included: BLM protestors vandalising buildings and police cars and setting the courthouse on fire in Nashville. Elder did not even criticise BLM directly, nor did he say anything racist.

A young embroiderer artist, Jess de Wahls, sold her tapestries through the Royal Academy of Art's gift shop to make a living. She posted a few lines on social media in 2019 about her position as a Transgender-sceptic Feminist. She was not disrespectful to Trans people but affirmed that biological sex is immutable. Eight Woke people Tweeted that she was a Transphobe that needed to be made an example of, so the Royal Academy cancelled her contract for being Transphobic; she lost her livelihood and suffered online abuse. Her crime? She said that a woman is 'an adult human female ... and not an identity or feeling'.¹⁵

Rioting

For examples of this see the videos of the effects of BLM and Antifa riots in America.

Demonstrations

These often turn nasty, unlike the peaceful marches staged by Lockdown Sceptics. The demonstrators are very often middle class teenagers and students who don't have anything better to do.

Outlawing books, paintings, films, TV and architecture

Paintings

See earlier on the removal of a painting of Queen Elizabeth II.

Books / authors challenged by Woke activists include:

- William Shakespeare (playwright).
- Immanuel Kant (philosopher).
- John Maynard Keynes (economist).

¹⁵ The Telegraph, Craig Simpson, 'Royal Academy pulls artist's work from gift shop over Transphobic views', 17 June 2021.

- Enid Blyton.
- Jane Austen.
- Mark Twain's 'Huckleberry Finn'.
- Dr Seuss.
- Harper Lee's 'To kill a mockingbird'.
- George Orwell's '1984'.
- JD Salinger's 'The catcher in the rye'.
- William Golding's 'The lord of the flies'.
- Laura Ingalls Wilder's 'Little house on the prairie'.
- Abigail Shrier's 'Irreversible danger: the Transgender craze seducing our daughters'.
- Jill Twiss' 'A day in the life of Marlon Brando'.
- Cory Silverberg's 'Sex is a funny word'.

Reasons given include: racial slurs, racism, xenophobia, portraying Blacks as less than human, offensive trigger language, White supremacy, gender issues, homophobia, classism, cultural appropriation, and so on.

In many cases when the Woke Left target a certain book or author, their sales go up, such as the Dr Seuss books.

Remember that historically, burning books later led to burning people. The Spanish Inquisition, established to police thought and uphold orthodoxy, soon began the auto-da-fé (public penance for heretical sins beginning with humiliation, then flogging, then torture and burning).

Architecture

Woke architects are now developing Critical Race Theory based ‘learning experiences’ to ‘confront negative cultural messaging in the built environment’; saying that ‘Critical Race Theory provides a lens for exploring and dismantling these expressions of socio-economic power’.¹⁶

Brainwashing children

Examples of Wokeness in institutions

Universities

Universities are very Woke and are at the centre of Woke programmes. This is not surprising because academia is now riddled from top to bottom with Socialist and even Communist professors who actively brainwash students with propaganda. The worst Marxist influences are in the humanities¹⁸ and social sciences.¹⁹

The underlying presumption of these academics and students is the problem of default racism, homophobia, sexism, transphobia and classism. To combat this they establish innumerable workshops, awareness campaigns, reporting systems and formal policies to establish how people should think, speak and behave. Examples:

- Manchester University advised staff not to use the terms: ‘mother’ and ‘father’. Instead neutral words like ‘parent’ or ‘guardian’ must be used. ‘Men’ and ‘women’ must be replaced by ‘individuals’. ‘Manpower’, ‘mankind’, and ‘chairman’ must be replaced with ‘workforce’, ‘humankind’ and ‘chair’.
- Edinburgh University gives a list of Transphobic phrases that teachers and students must not say. Forbidden phrases include: ‘all women have their periods’ and ‘you’re either a man or a woman’.
- Northwest University (US) states that instead of the greeting, ‘Hey guys’, you should say, ‘Hey everyone’. Socio-economic language requires saying ‘under-resourced’ rather than ‘inner city’ and ‘working hard to make ends meet’ rather than ‘working poor’.
- Cambridge University encouraged students to report any professor who raised an eyebrow, gives back-handed compliments, calls women ‘girls’, or turns their back on people. Students can complain anonymously in its ‘Report and Support’ website. After vociferous complaints and negative publicity the university took this site down for revision.

- However many universities allow anonymous reporting of micro-aggression, micro-insults and micro-invalidation. In Durham University you can be reported for ‘not giving someone eye contact’ or for ‘constantly criticising’.
- The University of Edinburgh renamed ‘David Hume Tower’ into ‘40 George Square’. This was because the great philosopher was accused of racism for just using terms that were common in his day. This apparently caused distress to the poor Woke Snowflakes.
- Goldsmiths University, through pressure of the student’s union, now allows BAME people to be able to use ‘racial trauma’ as a reason to defer essays and exams and without any hard evidence. Since BAME people form a majority in Goldsmiths’ this means that this policy racially discriminates against the White minority.
- Oxford Student Union is planning to hire ‘sensitivity readers’ to stop student newspapers publishing ‘problematic’ articles that are ‘implicitly racist or sexist’.
- Cornell University is running an astronomy course, which considers whether there is a connection between ‘the cosmos and the idea of racial blackness’.

Today students need to carry a handbook of acceptable phrases to prevent a slip up in conversation.

Another feature of Wokeness is the need for ‘Trigger warnings’ at the start of a seminar or talk. This is advance notice that the subject matter may upset someone easily offended. Woke people claim that such trigger statements can induce panic attacks and anxiety. So talking about race, sex or class can cause Woke people to be psychologically ill. This includes discussion of factual historical topics.

Sadly, today education has been replaced by Socialist Wokeism.

Schools

The National Association of Teachers of Religious Education has drawn up new curriculum guidance for primary school children to be taught about White privilege. This teaches kids aged 8 to 11 the ‘key concept’ of White privilege, which is described as invisible benefits that society affords to people ‘because of their Whiteness’. They specifically teach reasons why Colston’s statue was racially offensive, linking to a BLM webpage.

The campaign group ‘Don’t Divide Us’ has started a petition against Brighton and Hove Council’s new ‘Anti-racist schools strategy’ which proposes to introduce ‘racial literacy training’ in the council’s schools.

Young White boys are performing worse than any other subdivision of children; suicides are also increasing. This has become such a problem that questions are being asked in Parliament about the issue. This follows decades of White kids being accused of sexism, racism, homophobia, misogyny, chauvinism and much more. On top of this, today Critical Race Theory is being foisted on them by Marxist teachers telling them that they must despise their Whiteness and bow down to Black people. No wonder kids are confused and demoralised. Wokeness is abusing young White children.

The police

This is evidenced in scenes such as police officers taking the knee before rowdy BLM demonstrators on marches in London.

The police are also actively involved in policing thought (illegally). The college of police issued guidelines some years ago, still actively pursued, to enforce ‘non-crime hate crimes’.

This is where the police record a hate crime on a person's criminal record (e.g. due to something said on social media) even though the person did not actually commit a real crime against a statute. This has stopped innocent people from getting certain jobs or keeping their job due to police overreach. There have been allegations that the police spend more time investigating social media for hate crime than doing anything else.

The BBC

Since the BBC is dominated by Left-wing, liberal, often Marxist, sympathisers it has constantly pushed a social justice warrior type of Wokeism. Thus the BBC has become an organisation of box-tickers that long ago ignored the requirements of its public, or its Reithian responsibilities,²⁰ and instead pursued a Socialist agenda that ceased to even hide its extreme bias in reporting. Thus it has reported lies upon lies for many years, as I have exposed before. Its reporting during the Covid crisis has been shocking and merely parrots the government's agenda, which itself is lies. It is also in hock to Bill Gates who gives millions to the BBC.

Football teams

This has become a focus of Wokeness. Most football teams begin matches by the whole team taking the knee. Almost invariably the crowds watching this boo their own teams for introducing political issues into a popular sport.

Olympics

Gavin Hubbard was a mediocre weight lifter. For 35 years his testosterone developed in him strong muscles, vascular system and skeletal frame because he was a man. In 2013 he transitioned into identifying as a woman called Laurel and entered into the New Zealand Olympic trial, succeeding to get a place in the team. He had changed from being mediocre in his discipline to being superlative because he was competing against weaker women who have massively less testosterone and weaker frames. This choice has displaced biological women who have trained all their lives to get an Olympic team place. Anyone who complains that this is not fair is called a bully and a Transphobe.

English Heritage

Has vowed to review all of its blue plaques in case they may be linked to controversial historical figures. One person targeted has been author Enid Blyton, claiming that her books (beloved of millions) were 'racist and xenophobic'.

Commerce

Many companies are falling over themselves to comply with pressure from social media activists to be seen to endorse Woke principles. This was evidenced in the boycott against GB News before a programme had even been broadcast. It was organised by a group called 'Stop the hate' but really amounted to a few people Tweeting against the new channel. This was enough to get giants like IKEA and the Co-Op to terminate their advertising contracts. However, a massive backlash set in as the hypocrisy was exposed and the balanced, non-bias reporting of GB News was observed along with massive popularity (the firms lost huge advertising coverage). Most firms restarted their advertising campaigns. Yet this shows how easily companies are spooked by Woke activists.

Another example is the stupidity of Marks and Spencer in announcing their new line of underwear in celebration of George Floyd. This is a man who pointed a gun at a pregnant woman. What is there to celebrate? All over the country people affirmed that they would never shop at M&S again. Bloggers like Alex Bellfield and Katie Hopkins immediately pointed out the craziness of such a move. The M&S customer base is the very same conservative people that are horrified by such a decision. It could spell doom for the already struggling store.

Implicit Nazism

When you consider the aims and tactics of the Woke Left you come to the conclusion that this is nothing else but Nazism. There are significant similarities between the two.

We are in a culture war

The problems facing us today with Wokeness are but the culmination of the culture wars initiated by the Cultural Marxists of the Frankfurt School. Their whole purpose was to destroy the fundamental roots of Western Christianised society by a stealth operation to invade all the institutions of culture, especially academia, and destroy it from within, teaching generations of kids Marxist views. They wanted society to be so corrupted that it stank.²¹

Part of this corruption was to factionalise society into multiple oppressed groups that saw themselves as victims (Intersectionalism) and set these against the traditional White Christian establishment. The civil war brought about by this confrontation of groups would so destabilise society that a Marxist revolution would be easily enabled. America is on the verge of such a civil war and we are enabling it to develop in Britain.

While the mainstream media has become totally Woke, it has fallen to independent journalists, like Peter Hitchens and Douglas Murray, or groups such as The New Culture Forum (led by Peter Whittle) and Unherd, to maintain the fight with creditable, well-

²¹ Willi Münzenberg [1889-1940]: 'We must organise the intellectuals and use them to make the Western civilisation stink. Only then after they have corrupted all its values and made life impossible, can we impose the dictatorship of the proletariat.' researched dissertations and presentations. The new GB News TV channel, initiated this week and led by Andrew Neil, may offer some hope for unbiased, anti-Woke news and opinion. People are fed up with Woke media like the BBC.

It seems that there is finally a reaction setting in against Woke nonsense, such as the mission statement by the new Police Chief Constable in Greater Manchester, Stephen Watson, saying that the public is fed up with Woke policing, promising to catch burglars instead.²²

Some consider the culture war to be lost; however a reaction is just starting. What people forget is that the vast majority of ordinary decent people never took Wokeness onboard for one second, but the media never gave them a voice. Vehicles are now listening. Anti-Woke GB News out-performed all the other news media channels in the first days of its operation. In fact, time after time the aphorism²³ ‘Get Woke; go broke’ has proved to be true as organisations that commit to Wokery lose customers and money. Ordinary people cannot abide it.

How not to be Woke

In short, adopt Christian principles. I will list these without additional comment.

- Love God.
- Obey God’s law.
- Love your spouse and be faithful.
- Love your family; sacrifice yourself for your family.
- Love one another.
- Love your neighbour.
- Love your enemies.
- Do good to everyone you meet.
- Consider ways to serve people.
- Treat everyone as you would want them to treat you.
- Seek out the weak, poor, and vulnerable so that you can help in some way.
- Contribute to good charities to support the poor and needy.
- Seek the truth in all things. Study issues carefully.
- Listen to both sides of an argument; attempt to get to the real facts.
- Never lie.
- Never be a hypocrite.
- Don’t get angry with people. However, you can get angry with issues that offend God; e.g. be angry about injustice.
- Don’t swear.
- Don’t blaspheme.
- Don’t covet.
- Work and save to get what you need.
- Don’t boast or be proud.
- Don’t speak or write hastily without consideration.
- Don’t be schismatic.

²² His predecessor, forced to step down, failed to investigate 80,000 reported crimes in one year.

²³ ‘Aphorism’: a pithy observation which contains a general truth.

- Don't support political parties. However, support individual MPs that have integrity and do good.
- Never commit violence.
- Never be abusive.

Conclusion

I could have greatly extended this work because there is so much Wokeness in society that every day produces new cases of insanity. However, this paper is merely an introduction and so I have limited discussion of the aspects covered.

It is important to understand that there is a strategy in Wokeness; it is not just an aberration created by fashionable activists supported by a biased media. It is a concerted attack on Western society by Marxists acting by stealth to overthrow the nations weakened sufficiently by Woke designs. The purpose is revolution, the destruction of Christianity and the eradication of Western culture. These people want to ruin your country. The root of this strategy is Satan; the goal is satanic world domination through a globalist cabal of Luciferians.
